Preparing for changes at the UK border if there's a no deal EU Exit

Guidance for intermediaries

January 2019

English

What you need to know

The United Kingdom will be leaving the European Union at 11pm UK time on 29 March 2019.

Leaving the EU with a deal remains the Government's top priority and would give businesses stability and certainty to prepare for our new relationship after EU Exit.

However, the government must plan for every possible outcome including no deal. Without a deal, businesses may need to take action before 29 March 2019.

Use this information to understand how leaving the EU may affect your business and what you can do to get ready.

Preparing for changes at the UK border if there's a no deal EU Exit

What will change

At the UK border, there will be changes to UK-EU trade, including on:

- Customs, trade tariffs and VAT
- Safety and Security for goods
- Document requirements
- Vehicle standards
- Controlled products

Actions to keep your goods moving across the border

Immediate actions

- ☐ Tell UK and EU-based clients to register for a EORI number
- ☐ Review getting transport information from hauliers
- ☐ Communicate to hauliers if they will need to go to specific inland locations

Recommended actions

- ☐ Discuss preparations with your supply chain, including responsibilities and Incoterms
- ☐ Review your capacity to handle increased demand for your services
- ☐ Check if you can apply for UK Government funding to help increase capacity for providing your services
- ☐ Tell your employees about changes to passport rules
